

[*5] All imperialist regimes have done something similar, of course, most egregiously the Roman Empire, which enforced its laws and standards to the best of its ability in all the new lands it conquered. But none of them from my point of view has accomplished that sort of domination in the granular way and with such duplicity and furor as the Anglo-European Empire has over the last six hundred years.